1648 JOURNAL OF CLIMATE

• Figure 1 shows the results of the regression analysis. The dependent variable is the number of days of absence from work due to illness. The independent variables are the age, sex, and education of the respondent, the number of children in the household, the number of hours worked per week, and the number of years since the respondent last completed a course of education. The results show that the number of days of absence from work due to illness increases with age, sex, and education. The number of children in the household, the number of hours worked per week, and the number of years since the respondent last completed a course of education are not significant.
